The Jesuits

Above is Ignatius Loyola the founder of the Jesuits

He is said to be a Basque Spaniard but what does he look like to you?

Have a good look, does he look Spanish?

I'm putting this post up for consideration after Joshua and newensign's recent discussions

I've no axe to grind.....

I've posted the first few pages from this article from 2021, plenty more at this link

This is by request. I have already touched on the Jesuits many times, and my readers should already know my overall opinion on the subject, which will not change here. We have already seen Disraeli admitting the Jesuits were Jews, so I have read that as a simple infiltration, going way back—even before the Jesuits. We have seen the Papacy already infiltrated before Loyola, by the Medicis, Borgias, and other Jewish popes. In that light, the Jesuits were just these noble families cementing their hold on Rome and Europe by establishing their own specialized monks and monasteries.

I often get angry emails from people screaming that the Jesuits are behind the Jews, but of course that is upside down, I assume on purpose. The Jews have tried to deflect blame onto the Jesuits, but as you will see, that doesn't fly. The Jews were around and running their projects long before anyone had heard of the Jesuits. According to my extensive research, no one is crouching behind the Jews, except maybe the Phoenicians. But since I use the two terms pretty much interchangeably, that also doesn't deflect blame. It is two names for the same people, so in pointing at the Phoenicians I am not pointing away from the Jews. The Jews are just neo-Phoenicians.

The Alternative View Presents Roger Anderton

Date: 4 May 2025

Time: 11:00 - 16:00

Location: The Assembly Rooms, Glastonbury, Somerset, UK

"Einstein Wrong and Special Relativity Revisited"

might think this is a bold outing of the Jesuits, but it isn't. Like When Scotland was Jewish, it only seems to be spilling the beans. Both are actually opposition control, released by the Jews themselves. We already saw that with the latter book, which was written by two authors who admit they are Jewish. And it is the same with Robert Maryks. Did he fool you with that name? Try spelling it Marx. Maryks is an assistant professor at Boston College, so you can be sure he isn't doing anything revolutionary here. If he did any real research they would fire him immediately. The book was published under the auspices of The Studies in Medieval and Reformation Traditions, which appears to be founded, edited, and overseen by Jews. Maryks actually thanks a Borja in his acknowledgments. We see what they are up to very fast in the long introduction, where they admit what is already known: the first Jesuits, including Loyola, were conversos or crypto-Jews, from noble and wealthy families. But then Maryks tries to convince us that although it was OK to be a Jesuit Jew from 1540 to 1593, after 1593 (see p. 117) the Jesuits were cleansed of Jewish blood from within, by new rules forbidding it. That isn't believable on the face of it, so we should look closely at Maryks' evidence. Does he prove it or even indicate it? No, he just says it.

But let's back up. In order to build street cred in the run up to that argument, Maryks admits the first Jesuits were Jews. Disraeli and many others, including other prominent Jews and rabbis, have already admitted it, so Maryks isn't telling us anything we don't already know. But as part of building his cred, he does go into a bit more deeply than others before him, showing a lot of evidence they were Jewish. So this should interest us, and does. It probably explains why the book—although prepared as controlled opposition by the Jews themselves—was soon pulled from the shelves. It is almost impossible to buy, being out of print and going for hundreds of dollars online.

My link above goes to Veteran's Today from 2018, where Gordon Duff is recommending the book. Also for street cred, I assume. And also to sell you the idea the Jesuits were only Jews before 1593.

So let's look at the first Jesuits. The first one I will look at is very easy, that being Alfonso Salmeron. You can tell he is Jewish just from the name. Salmeron=Salmon=Salomon=Solomon. Also see his picture, which is easy to read. A preternaturally long hook nose and no cross around his neck. But if that kind of evidence offends you, I send you to Maryks, who gives you much more. Salmeron was from Toledo, where his family were known Jews of longstanding and huge wealth. If you search for him in Maryks' book online, good luck. The important things don't come up either on an internal search (ctrl F) or in the index

So I will just give you the hint: go to the footnote of page 55, where Maryks admits many Jewish historians have admitted Salmeron is Jewish, including Friedman, GomezMenor, and Salvador.

Toledo had been a Jewish stronghold for many centuries, being run by Phoenicians back to Roman times. Back then they were known as Carpetians, and by the 1st century AD Toledo already had the largest Roman circus in Spain. By the third century it was already a favored town of the wealthiest in that region, due to its use as a trade and banking center (and being on a pretty hill surrounded by rivers*). We are supposed to believe these people running Toledo in those years were Goths, ie wildmen of the north, but there is no evidence of that. Like the Vikings, they have been sold as something they weren't. Most likely they were northern Phoenicians battling with their southern cousins. If they had been wildmen they couldn't have competed with the Romans. It is admitted that the Jews were in Toledo from the beginning, but we are supposed to believe they were oppressed by the Goths and then the Moors and all along by the Christians. The usual story. The usual flip of history.

We are told the speed of light cannot be exceeded. What if that is wrong? What if Einstein was wrong and the theory of General Relativity is incorrect? Could that open up a whole new world of possibilities?

In May 2025 The Alternative View returns to Glastonbury where Roger Anderton will be asking those questions and putting forward an exciting new model.

Roger Anderton is from the John Chappell Natural Philosophy Society – a group that was formed on the idea that Einstein's relativity is wrong (especially special relativity is wrong). In relativity there are many paradoxes (such as twin paradox) which are really contradictions; thus the believers in relativity are talking nonsense. In trying to get this information out to the general public we have found our voice has been mostly blocked.

For first time in UK we are presenting publicly the film Einstein Wrong by David de Hilster which has been prevented from being shown at film festivals. Physics has been corrupted by relativity nonsense.

Event hosted by Gary Fraughen.
